LENNARD SCHUURMANS

Lennard Schuurmans, a creative soul hailing from Amsterdam, is a multi-faceted artist, celebrated as a tattoo artist, illustrator, and designer. His craft extends beyond traditional mediums, finding resonance in the fusion of antique type drawers, wood, and assorted found objects. Within his studio, he orchestrates tactile and occasionally interactive masterpieces.

At the heart of Lennard's artistic journey lies an enduring fascination with typography, a realm where various lettering techniques intertwine. Through the passage of time, his artistic identity has metamorphosed into an abstract narrative - a dance of urban contemporary folkart. With meticulous dedication, he conjures a tapestry of precision, where each form, shape, letter, and hue is meticulously calibrated, creating a harmonious chorus that resonates with the heart of the city.

YORKONE

The roots of YorkOne's artistic journey date back to his youth, where at a young age, influenced by the aesthetics of the corporate identities of the 70s and 80s, he developed an interest in logos and lettering. Years later, he developed the instantly recognizable style he uses today, seamlessly combining the rebellious energy of modern graffiti art with the symmetrical shapes of typography.

Although his creations still retain typographical features, they often transcend immediate recognition as letters, evolving into intriguing abstract forms.

Words have power, they contain energy. They can help or hinder, heal or hurt, trigger emotions and change lives. Words can contain wisdom. By selecting our words thoughtfully, we can positively change our mindset and that of others, and who knows, maybe lift people to a higher level.

YorkOne's artistic prowess has been recognized through its participation in multiple exhibitions. His works have found a prominent place in both solo and group exhibitions and his portfolio is included in the collection of the Museum Straat in Amsterdam.

MATHIJS TROMP

MATHIJS TROMP

Mathijs Tromp is a Dutch photographer, and founder and co-owner of Flatspot Magazine (since 2014), an online platform created by skateboarders, for skateboarders. Mathijs himself was a skateboarder before becoming a skateboard photographer. At a young age he began making videos of his skate crew with a cheap camera he bought at Aldi. He then drifted naturally towards photography. His lens gives us more than just magazine worthy moments in time, his photos encapsulate the essence of skateboarding culture as well as the athleticism involved. Mathijs now travels the world in search of unique skate spots, documenting international amateurs and professional skateboarders at various points in their careers. This passion, devotion and love for a simple piece of wood are hard to explain, he says, but Mathijs hopes that through his photos, everyone can experience it. 'The blood, the sweat, and the tears must be visible.' /Mathijs Tromp

STRAAT invites you to step into the thrilling world of skateboarding through the lens of Dutch photographer Mathijs Tromp. Experience the essence of skateboarding street culture, where freedom, expression, and adrenaline converge. Each photo tells a story of exploration and discovery where he invites you to experience the raw energy and exhilaration of skaters pushing the boundaries of what's possible on four wheels.
